A. Answer the following questions : (Refer to page number 65)

Q.1] What could everyone see when Mr. Wonka opened the door?

Ans.1] When Mr. Wonka opened the door everyone saw a lovely valley with green meadows on either side of it. At the bottom of the valley flowed a great brown river. There was waterfall halfway along the river and a steep cliff over which the water curled and rolled into a solid sheet and then came crashing down into a boiling whirlpool of froth and spray.

Q.2] What was the function of the glass pipes?

Ans.2] The function of the glass pipes was to suck up the brownish muddy water from the river and carry it away to the other rooms in the factory.

Q.3] Why was the waterfall important?

Ans.3] The waterfall was important because it mixed the chocolate, churned it up, pounded it and beat it to make it light and frothy. The waterfall was used to mix its chocolate properly.

Q.4] What was the grass made of?

Ans.4] The grass was made of a new kind of soft, minty sugar that Mr. Wonka had invented. It was delectable.

Q.5] What did everyone notice at the other side of the river?

Ans.5] Everyone noticed that there were tiny men no larger than medium- sized dolls working below the waterfall. They had funny long hair and were staring back across the river at the visitors.
